DROID POWER

8007. C-3PO

When the Technicmaster (an adult) or an expert kid (C-3PO or the crew) build the arms and head, he'll get it - but since most are able to put it together, C-3PO can easily receive his suit. From 9 years.

ON THE WEB

Want to know all about the droids? Go to LEGO's Web Site. Here you can win LEGO Star Wars boxes, send a postcard to a friend - and have lots of fun.

8008. STORMTROOPER

The Stormtrooper is ready for action! You get and shoot his blaster - and if C-3PO (an 8007) is the target, the droid's arms and head fall off! And since C-3PO is so easy to fit, you can quickly put him back together again. From 9 years.

8008. DESTROYER DROID

Caution: rolling out of control! This droid reveals to be that it's a real troublemaker. From 9 years.
